Europcar Mobility Group UK staff make it child's play for KidsOut Christmas 'Giving Tree' campaign

Hundreds of toys and games donated to campaign to ensure disadvantaged children have gifts to open on Christmas day

Employees from all of Europcar Mobility Group UK's operations – from the head office and operations centre to every rental station - have done their bit to bring some Christmas joy to disadvantaged children. Hundreds of toys and games have been donated by the company's employees to the KidsOut 'Giving Tree' Christmas campaign. The toys were taken to the KidsOut Luton depot earlier this week so that they could be wrapped up ready for distribution to disadvantaged children currently living in refuge homes around the UK.

"Each year more than 20,000 children flee domestic abuse to seek sanctuary – often having to leave quickly, taking no possessions with them", explained Gordon Moulds, CEO of KidsOut. "Without our 'Giving Tree' campaign these children may not otherwise receive a gift at Christmas. We are therefore delighted that Europcar Mobility Group UK and its employees have chosen to support us at what can be an especially difficult time of year for children."

Kevin Rand, Operations Director, Europcar Mobility Group UK added: "As part of our active social responsibility programme, employees have chosen to support KidsOut through a number of initiatives over the next year. The 'Giving Tree' campaign is the first of these. It's been amazing to see the toys coming in at our locations around the country and a great pleasure to ensure the toys all got to the KidsOut's depot."

Anyone in the company who wanted to join in collected a gift tag from a 'Giving Tree' at their workplace. Each tag had the name of a child and the gift they would like to receive written on it.

"We have received great support for this worthwhile cause from staff across all our locations", continued Kevin Rand. "We arranged to get all the presents from our various collection points to the main KidsOut distribution centre in Luton using our own fleet of vans.

"Volunteers from the charity and some of our HQ Operations management team will now work hard to sort and arrange delivery of all the toys to where they are needed most - at refuge centres and safe houses countrywide in time for Christmas."

"We are incredibly grateful for the amazing support we are getting from Europcar Mobility Group UK – every present we receive means that we are able to bring more fun and happiness to more children at Christmas and give them memories that they will cherish", concluded Gordon Moulds, CEO of KidsOut.
